This document typically details:

- + Trigger and timing for snow plowing, for example “the minimum amount of snow accumulation before plowing is 5cm” and “conduct snow plowing before 7am”
- + Responsibilities, for example differentiation of work between Contractors and Custodians, and,
- + A location-specific Clearance Plan.

These three considerations are important when choosing slip resistant winter footwear.

When choosing winter footwear, here are a couple additional tips:

- + Be aware that not all 'Safety' winter footwear is slip resistant. Most safety footwear has puncture and impact protection but may not be slip resistant on snow and ice.
- + As a consumer, determining how slip resistant footwear is, is not easy. There is no 'Green Patch' for slip resistance like there is for safety boots or shoes – but this is changing!
- + Scientists at the KITE Research Institute, part of the University Health Network in Toronto, have developed slip resistant testing method designed to reflect real world slip resistance performance.

The keys to a penguin walk are simple:

- 1. Extend your arms (wings) out to the side.
- 2. Bend your knees and spread your feet out slightly.
